FIFTEEN CENTS

OLD TIMES RETURN TO SUNDAY SERVICE

R. W. Smith and Family Will Conduct Hymn Exercises August 24

Two weeks from Sunday night Shoreham is to be taken back five years in time, when the R. W. Smith family used to conduct the Song Services at the Clubhouse. It was announced last Sunday evening, by Mr. Edward Stevens that Mr. R. W. Smith and family would be present to lead the exercises Sunday night, August 24, at 8 p. m.

Upon invitation the Smiths have consented to take charge of the hymn hour as in former years. A special feature of the evening will be a group of songs by Mrs. Zabriskie, another former property owner of the Village.

Smiths Live in Huntington

At present the Smiths reside in Huntington, and Mrs. Zabriskie in New Jersey. It will be remembered that Mr. Smith was former owner of the C. D. Waters property on High Street and that Mrs. Zabriskie resided in the F. O. Zenke house on Tagliabue Road.

This coming Sunday night, for the third consecutive week, a member of the younger set of Shoreham is to conduct the Song Service. Mr. Frederick W. Finn, Vice-president of the Country Club has been announced leader for the week-end hymn hour. Previously Mr. J. W. Haslett and Mr. Robert Oliver have acted as chairmen of the exercises, and it is expected that other members of the younger set will lead the gatherings in the near future.

Mrs. B. Frei will sing as a special feature Sunday, it has been announced, accompanied by Madame Valeri. No program of selections has yet been made public.

Will Feature Two Plays With Cotillion August 30

Two one-act plays are to be produced in connection with the Cotillion Saturday night, August 30, it was announced this afternoon by Mrs. F. W. Nye, Chairman of the Entertainment Committee. They will be put in rehearsal immediately, it was stated.

"A Dog's Life" by Diom Titheradge and "The Old Lady Shows Her Muddles" by Ronald Jeans, are the names of the skits. A list of the players will be made public next week, Mrs. Nye said.

Shoreham Fishermen Save Canoists from Drowning

Two Eddy Sisters and Hilda Scott Are Rescued Three Miles Off Shore When Canoe Capsizes Thursday Morning But Suffer No Bad Effects

Lois Eddy, Barbara Eddy and Hilda Scott, all Shoreham residents under sixteen years of age were saved from drowning yesterday morning by David Pallister, Gilbert Frei and Wentworth Eldridge, after the canoe in which the girls were paddling capsized three miles off Rocky Point beach.

The overturned canoe was sighted by a telescope from North Shore Beach, the owner of which called to the three men who were mooring Pallister's motorboat after having returned from a morning's fishing. Pallister detached the boat from the buoy and headed for the specks in the water more than three miles away.

Saved in Six Minutes

According to reports, the girls were reached less than six minutes after they had been sighted from the beach. They were clinging to the edges of the canoe, two being unable to swim properly, impeded by clothes. Frei and Eldridge hauled them aboard the motorboat, while Pallister manoeuvred it about the canoe.

Ropes were attached to the canoe, which was pulled in the stern of the motorboat to shore, where a few bathers had congregated to watch the rescue. No dangerous after effects were reported concerning the three girls because of their immersion, all having been in the water no more than fifteen minutes, it was stated.

The three girls had started from the beach at Shoreham over an hour previous, paddling out past the dory, it was said, when an off-shore breeze which had been blowing for some time became stronger. The three tried to head the boat toward shore, but were blown diagonally away from the beach toward Rocky Point.

Capsize Boat

When the canoe was nearly three miles from the shoreline, two of the girls decided to change seats in order to get better results from paddling. As they both stood up, the boat capsized, throwing them all into the water, where they were picked up fifteen minutes later by the fishermen.

GO TO BELLE TERRE

All members of the Garden Club desirous of attending the Belle Terre Flower Society Exhibition will meet in front of F. E. Beckwith's Store Wednesday, August 20, at 2:30 P. M., it was announced this afternoon by Mrs. J. W. Finn, President of the organization. An entrance fee of 25 cents is payable at the Belle Terre Club, it was stated.

Amateur Sleuths Trail Blood But Find no Murderers' Den

Reports of the presence of a criminal in town have been circulating throughout Shoreham since Sunday. Three male members of the younger group swear to having seen a trail of blood in the Brickyard. Ghastly noises are said to have been heard in the same vicinity. Yet, no resident reports having been slain in his sleep. What is the answer?

Concerning the eerie spoor of blood, in the account issued by eyewitnesses, the time set was Sunday night at 9:30, and the place given was the Gully yclept Sill's. One Vincent Sherman stated to the press that he with John Hagenah and Robert Oliver being in search of Mr. Sherman's maid who had unexpectedly disappeared, drove to the gully as a last resource, after having searched within a twenty-mile area for the lost woman.

The car was stopped by the steps leading to the beach at the opening to the Brickyard. There the searching crew dismounted from the high powered speedster and sniffed the air for clues.

A pungent odor assailed their nostrils. Eyes were cast upon the boards of the flight of steps. There was the Clue to the Missing Maid, (Scribner's, $2.50)—a trail of blood spots extending from the top of the stairs to the low water mark on the beach.

The maid was later located at the home of friends in Wading River.

ANNOUNCE NUMBERS IN FOLLIES OF 1930

Fifty in Cast of Current Edition Directed By Evelyn Jantzer

A week from tomorrow there is scheduled the presentation of the Shoreham Follies, 1930 Edition, under the personal supervision and direction of Evelyn Jantzer. The dance revue will be the second of its kind attempted in Shoreham, with a Follies of 1929 on record as one of the favorite pieces of entertainment ever put on at the Country Club.

Ten numbers have been slated for the new Follies, with a cast of fifty, all summer residents of the Village. Outline program of the sketches includes Pierrot's Serenade, Song and Dance Routine, The Love Set, The Nymph, On the Green, Scarf Dance, Flower of May, Song Duet, Tango, Ensemble Song.

Cast Personnel

Included in the cast for the Follies are Mrs. H. F. Hughes, Mrs. J. L. De Pew, the Misses Mary Cross, Virginia Macy, Anne Waters, Janet Waters, Lois Eddy, Jane McGahen, Peggy McGahen, Elise Marie Sherman, Mary Mealla, Natalie Finn, Eugenie Finn, Mary Bailey, Jane Beckwith, Barbara Eddy, Jane Eddy, Marian Zenke, Lassie Zenke, Lorraine Nye, Hilda Scott, Peggy Elliott, Joy Sedgwick, Marie Vermynen, Betty Edwards, Marie Frei, Grace Walsh, Margaret Walsh, Frances Kuchler, Dorothy Weisman.

Officers Elected By Garden Group

Leaders of Flower Society to Take Office After the Fall Exhibition

An executive meeting of the Garden Club was called for Friday, August 8, by Mrs. J. W. Finn, President of the organization. The first measure discussed was that concerning the invitation issued by the Belle Terre Garden Club for a joint exhibit with the Shoreham flower society August 20 at Belle Terre. Decision in the matter was said by Mrs. Finn to be of a volitional nature on the part of individual members.

As a whole, the Shoreham Garden Club will not exhibit at Belle Terre but any individuals of the local society desirous of exhibiting may do (continued on page three)

SHOREHAM'S VELODROME

New York City's Velodrome at 226th Street has burned down, according to reports by the metropolitan press, and henceforth bicycle riders will have to pedal their wheels elsewhere. Burning is one of the methods which might be employed to keep people from riding in certain buildings, but it is not the correct means through which to keep the youngsters and their bicycles from the Club dance floor.

Reasons pointing toward the deterring of bicycle riders in the club are evident: deterioration of the floor surface, unsightliness to anybody at the Club at the time, danger involved for the children themselves.

Complaints of previous seasons regarding the inferior quality of the dance floor were answered at the beginning of this season by the re-finishing of the floor surface under orders of club officials. Now is not the time to ruin with rubber tires what effect polishing and varnishing has achieved.

Club members bringing guests to the Clubhouse should not be subjected to the embarrassment of explaining to them that the Club believes in pleasing all, hence the allowance of children and their bicycles on the dance floor.

Greatest of the three objections is the dancer involved for the children themselves. A dance floor is, of necessity, a slippery affair with little or no possibility for traction. Riders in the Club are compelled to circle the dance floor, one consecutive curve which, at all times, is too smooth for safe equilibrium on a bicycle. And then there is always opportunity for a youngster to turn too sharply, bicycle sliding out from under him, and falling to the floor none too softly.

So, for the three reasons stated, followers of the wheel should regard the dance floor as a dance floor and not as Shoreham's Velodrome.

UNPRECEDENTED ATTENDANCE

With the return for one evening of Robert Warren Smith, his wife and children, Shoreham is going to receive a treat in its Sunday hour of Song Service. No more than five years ago this same group was prominent every week in its distinctive conducting of the hymn exercises.

The suggestion that Mr. Smith lead at least one Song Service this year came from a Shoreham resident, who, doubtless, spoke the thoughts of a great many who retained a pleasant impression of the Smith evenings of music. Consent on the part of Mr. Smith was prompt, showing that even with the lack of his presence, his thoughts still contain memories of the Village which was once his summer home.

The only way in which Shoreham can express its appreciation to the Smiths is by an unprecedented attendance at Song Service, Sunday, August 24.

PREVIEWS

With the Shoreham Follies of 1930 scarcely a week away, moments for dance rehearsals are valuable both to director and to cast. Hardly more than three occasions for practice are left before the production August 23.

Interest has reached an intensity for both participants in the Follies and potential audience. This has been evidenced by the latter in the manner in which people have literally flocked to the Clubhouse to watch the dancers go through their steps.

No ban, however, has been laid down by the director to the effect that spectators are not to be allowed in the Club during rehearsals. This could not readily be done, the Club being a building open to members at all times. Nevertheless, preview audiences usually witness a certain proportion of nervousness among the cast, what with forgotten steps and misplaced feet, which mistakes are expected to occur in rehearsals two weeks distant from a production.

From the standpoint of the cast, preview audiences are an annoyance, since concentration during practice is most desirable, and since it is next to the impossible to exclude the feeling that censure is being exercised by spectators.

The psychological point of view of persons who have seen a show in rehearsal previous to its public appearance is the same as that experienced when one sees his future home in the process of construction, with its rafters and beams exposed to the elements. No one like to see a revue twice. This reason in connection with the undesirability of preview audiences on the part of the cast should be sufficient reason to keep unwanted spectators from the Clubhouse during rehearsal time.

Low Tidings

Our most extended and noteworthy contribution of the season, offered with the compliments of the writer, who, it seems, was a visitor to this bourne not long ago, is hereby published verbatim.

I, who have known the stone-still peace that clings
Through Summer dawns about an English village,
Hot with resentment watch the new years pillage
Thy heritage of silence. Nothing brings
To Wisdom's agonies more gold of life
Than solitude, and the contented ways
That once "remoteness" returned,
in the days
That never knew the clamorous, strident strife
This wheel-mad mockery of living.
I,
Who sing perhaps too bitterly for some
Of past forgotten glories, keep this crumb
Of comfort for myself. Still happily,
I know one sure retreat where
Peace is standing
Guard over Time and Silence . . .
Warden's Landing.

WADING RIVER

—Frederick Green, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Green, barely escaped serious injury when the Franklin sedan he was driving overturned in Wildwood Park on Saturday. The car was badly wrecked, but neither of the occupants of the car were hurt.

—Mr. McGinley of West Palm Beach, has joined his family at the shore for an indefinite period. The McGinleys are occupying the Margaret Gosman bungalow this summer.

—Miss Mary Quick, of Winchester, Virginia, spent the week-end with the William Millers. Miss Quick is studying at Columbia University this summer.

—Peter Gill spent the week-end in Wading River as the guest of his friend, Halsey Gosman.

—Mr. George Hart, Bradley Hart, and Mr. E. S. Miller attended the regular annual meeting of the Archeological Society, held at the home of the President, Mr. Goddard, in Aquebogue, this week. Nat Booth, whose collection of Indian pottery and other curios is reported the most interesting and valuable on the Island, was the principal speaker.

—Miss Alice Miller entertained at bridge Wednesday evening in honor of her guest, Miss Mary Sheffield. Among those who enjoyed the evening were the Misses Marguerite Heatley, Ethel Newcastle, Bettie Longson, Evelyn Rowley, Clifford Hankte, Neil Hopper, Russell Meier, Francis Sturge, Stephen Burbank and Arnold Warner.

—Mrs. Arthur Wince entertained Miss Louise Trueberg, of Malverne, Long Island, over the past week-end.

—The regular weekly dance given at the Pavilion took the form of a masquerade last Friday. Several novelty dances were introduced, and prizes were offered for the most attractive costumes. Mrs. C. MacCardell DeWitt, dressed as a Hawaiian maiden, attracted a great deal of attention, and was awarded first prize for the most original and effective costume. Miss Marguerite Heatley, as the Gay Caballero, won second prize, and Miss Ruth Wince, as An Old Fashioned Girl, captured third prize. There were seventy-five guests present.

—Miss Ethel Newcastle left on Friday for Green Pond, New Jersey, where she will spend the remainder of the season.

—Miss Evelyn Rowley entertained at a bridge and dance Tuesday evening. The guests included the Misses Alice Miller, Mary Sheffield, Edna von der Geest, Margery Kuehn, Dorothy Tredwell, Marguerite Heatley, Helen Laux, Mrs. Thomas Mather, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Dow, and Messrs. Russell Meier, Irving Malch, Neil Hopper, Royden Black, Francis Sturge, Duane Conklin, Knowles Lawrence.

SHOREHAM ITEMS

By R. OLIVER

—Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Harper Blodgett, of New York and Great Barrington, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Blodgett to Mr. Livingston Hall, of New York. Miss Blodgett was graduated from Miss Hall's School of Pittsfield in 1928. Mr. Hall, University of Chicago, '23, and Harvard Law School, '27, is the son of the late Dean Hall of Chicago University Law School. The Blodgetts were among the early residents of Shoreham and lived in the house now occupied by the Todds.

—Miss Dorothy Rogers is the house guest of Miss Virginia Macy this week. Miss Rogers is a student at Pratt Art School in Brooklyn, where Miss Macy is studying.

The 1930 Edition of the Follies is to come slightly later in the season than did its predecessor in 1929, which was presented by Evelyn Jantzer Saturday night, July 27. Reasons given for the later production of the show this summer are that rehearsals were not commenced until at least two weeks after the time they had been started in 1929.

Should the Follies meet with enthusiasm equal to that evidenced last year, the production will probably become a permanent fixture in the schedule of the Entertainment Committee in future seasons, it was stated.
